Covid-19 – Resources for Social Workers supporting the Resilience & Strength of our Communities

Below is a list of articles that have been selected as a resource for social workers that may be of use and interest in supporting the resilience and strength of our communities in response to COVID-19. These articles have been selected as they reflect on the experience and expertise of others in comparable contexts and/or act as highlighter of good practice.

What do you mean, I’m “resilient”?
Carole Adamson, Luis Arevalo

Personal reflections: What happens when disaster hits?
Lynne Briggs, Molly Heisenfelt Roark

The Canterbury Earthquakes and refugee communities
Jay Marlowe, Lucy Lou

Women’s place-making through craft in post-earthquake Christchurch
Jane Maidment, Raewyn Tudor, Ada Campbell and Karen Whittaker

The engagement phase of wraparound Systems of Care
Tauke Kirkwood

In The Zone: Keeping hope alive through shaky times
Vaughan Miller

Social workers’ perceptions of multi-disciplinary team work: A case study of health social workers at a major regional hospital in New Zealand
Rebecca Giles

The purpose of cultural supervision
Annaru Eketone